CHATEAUX

“It’s the whopping great panels of glass that have been inserted into the arches that gives CIRQA its high drama and the kind of sleekness expected from a Relais & Châteaux property.”

CONDE NAST TRAVELER

CIRQA has been part of Arequipean history since the city was founded and shares an age-old bond with the San Agustín Church.

Paying respect for its heritage and honouring its original concept, CIRQA was inspired by the monk's traditional paradors where they received travellers offering them unbounded hospitality and hearty cuisine.

AT THE HEART OF THE WHITE CITY

Arequipa, Peru's second largest city, is the heart of the southern travel circuit and is often referred to as the White City, due to its abundant sillar stone architecture. Home to three snow-capped volcanoes, this colonial gem is distinctive for its colourful monasteries, cobblestone streets and renowned gastronomic heritage, making it a favoured destination.

THE PARADOR

Echoing 1540 – the year in which Arequipa was built- the parador safeguards its unique Arequipenean character and original volcanic rock infrastructure. CIRQA is applauded for its astounding design and architecture which, combined with contemporary nuances, make up the soul of the property. The eleven rooms, some of which have restored high-vaulted ceilings, are spread around the first floor's main terraza and patio. On the second floor the parador's rooftop "El Techo de CIRQA" overlooks the surrounding neighbourhoods and showcases the city's volcanoes.

“The layers of history embedded in the white sillar rock of this 1583 building add character to the new 11-room Relais & Châteaux hotel, nestled in a narrow street at the heart of the colonial city of Arequipa.”

BÓVEDA: Magnificent and spacious, with its original high-vaulted ceilings that recall ancient Parador times, each with a stand-alone bathtub and a private sitting area. They range from 39.9 to 49.7 m² (429 - 534 sq. ft.).
